

Designer Jay Jeffers gave this remodeled Edwardian house in San Francisco's Pacific Heights a chromatically bold update for a young professional woman who is now starting her family here.

Make Room

This page: Jay Jeffers lounges on an armchair (with a mismatched ottoman, both from A. Rudin) in what is now the home's nursery; wall details are Benjamin Moore's Hidden Sanctuary. Opposite: Jeffers modernized his client's living room with a new fireplace surround by concrete artisan Buddy Rhodes and floating Lucite shelves from Maziza (in a color called Grecian Urn). Two Tuileries chairs from Jacques Garcia for Baker and a Gregorius Pineo Dover wing chair surround a Dessin Fournir Rateau coffee table. The wall color is Benjamin Moore's Sweet Daphne; art is by Robert Kingston.
